REV. W. F. CASHMAN

BEGINS WORK HERE

Rev. W. F. Cashman, the new pastor of the M. E. Church, South, preached his first sermon of the conference year at the local church Sunday morning and at night. The sermons were strong and logical. He was greeted by large congregations at both services. Rev. Cashman's family will arrive in the city in a few days.

The fellow who thinks he knows it all usually knows less than the one who admits that he knows nothing.

EDITOR OF SOUL AWAKENER SUED

L. R. Fox, Madisonville Attorney, Asks $50,000 for Alleged Libel

Latt F. McLaughlin, editor of the "Soul Awakener," a weekly paper published in Madisonville, was made the defendant in a damage suit for $50,000 last Friday morning a short time after his paper was circulated on the streets, with two lengthy articles commenting on Letcher R. Fox, well known attorney, switching from the Democratic to the Republican party. Mr. Fox filed the suit through litigation, J. A. Jenson.

Mr. Fox, who until about fifteen months ago had been a Republican in politics, joined the ranks of the Democrats. Only recently he returned to the Republican party and is a supporter of Hughes for president. Editor McLaughlin, in two rather long articles in his last issue, was quite severe in his comments on the action of the attorney, which resulted in the big suit.

PEOPLE YOU OUGHT TO KNOW

There are many people in this town you ought to know for your own sake. Some of them you may not know, but you should.

You should know the banker. He is the one who supplies you with money when you need it and cares for your money when you have it. No town can conduct modern business without him.

You should know each merchant. They have the goods you want, and if you know each one personally you also know something of the wares they sell. This enables you to buy judiciously and saves you many a lost penny.

You should know the mechanic. Every time an improvement is made you must call him in. If you know them all you like is know the one who is most likely to give you the best service.

You should know the school teachers. They are responsible to a great degree for the moulding of the character of your children, for the lessons they learn while under their care are not forgotten even to the brink of the grave. Know them and help them.

You should know the farmer. He holds the world in the hollow of his hand. To him we look for the production of the sustenance of life, and without him we could not live.

You should know the minister. He is interested in you though you may give little thought to him. He does not supply you with the bread you eat, or the clothes you wear, but he does beckon you along the road to a better life beyond. Know him and hear him, and heed him.

LEE JOHNSON ARRESTED FOR DESERTION

Lee Johnson was arrested at Lacey by Constable Will Powers for desertion and taken to Madisonville. He was a member of Company G, 3rd Ky., Infantry, of this city, and left the company at Fort Thomas, to which place he will be returned.

Latest reports from the European front contain the same old stuff served up under a new name.

Carranza will and he won't and he won't and he will, and darned if even Carranza knows what he will do.

PROHI SPECIAL HERE SATURDAY

Gov. Hanly and Others Will Speak From Rear of Train Platform

Earlington is soon to be visited by a group of notable men who are to arrive here on a special train in the interest of the Prohibition party. J. F. Hanly, candidate for President of the United States on the Prohibition ticket, and his running mate, I. A. Laidrich, candidate for Vice President, are scheduled to speak here on Saturday October 14th at 12:10 P. M. The meeting will be held under the auspices of a local committee in charge of arrangements and the candidates will speak from the rear platform of the Special Train at the L & N passenger station.

Both of the candidates are national characters who have been active in public life in past several years. M. Hanly is a well known orator and statesman who represented Indiana in Congress for some years and later became Governor. Before affiliated with the Prohibition party he was a Republican.

Ira Laidrich is a Southerner from Tennessee, an ex-Unionist and an internationally known educator, lecturer, and author. Large crowds have greeted the speakers at all their engagements and the novel idea of the Prohibition Special and its eloquent candidates has attracted nation wide attention. News dispatches indicate that the Prohibition candidates are attacking both Mr. Wilson and Mr. Hughes vigorously and this is attracting large crowds of the democrats and republicans who want to hear what the Prohibitionists say about their candidates.

The Prohibition special is running from coast to coast, visiting more than 500 towns. Earlinton K. was included on the itinerary through arrangements made by local supporters of the cause. After the speaking here Saturday at 12:10 P. M. the special will go to Martin Ky. where plans have been made for a big meeting.

MORE INDICTMENTS RETURNED

Making a Grand Total of 96 to Date—Grand Jury is Still Grinding

Thirty-two indictments were returned by the grand jury Monday, making a total of ninety-one to date. The grand jury is entering on its third week and has been given until Saturday to complete its work. A large number of the indictments are against alleged bootleggers.

Friday and Monday were taken up with the trials of common law cases. Court adjourned Saturday morning, no cases being tried on that day.

Most of this week will be devoted to the common law docket and next Monday the cases of the Commonwealth vs. Mack Logan, Buck Forgeson and Frank Tribble will come up for trial.

After The War, What?

The Cincinnati Enquirer, an Independent paper with Democratic leaning, and which usually supports the Democratic party, says of the industrial outlook after the close of the European War:

Democrats and Republicans alike realize that when the disbanded armies return to their homes, and the returned soldiers seek employment at their former vocations, the mills the shops, the factories of Europe will be offered labor at low prices and that every wheel and every loom and every forge and every furnace will be put to work using that low priced labor, and that its outputs will be pressed for sale in our markets as well as the markets of every other country on the face of the earth.

British and French, German and Russian, Austrian and Japanese, Belgian and Turkish industries will be supplied with millions of men who have for years endured hardship and privations upon daily pay that would not provide an average American family with bread alone, and these millions must work, and will work at starvation wages, and the markets of other nations will be swamped by their cheaply produced and cheaply sold outputs.

Society in the United States may favor an eight hour day, as President Wilson says, and every person in this country would be delighted if our workers could all afford to work but eight hours or five hours or three hours and make profits over and above expenses on their work at those hours. But how about it when society in foreign lands competes with our outputs through its outputs of workers on one-third wages admirably organized and very efficient working 10, 12 and even 14 hours per day in foreign countries? What chances for keeping our trade in foreign markets under these circumstances? What prospect of keeping our own markets from being swamped save by higher customs duties?

It will take all the energy, all the knowledge, all the wisdom of our business men after the close of this European war to prevent disaster to our manufactures in many lines, and to prevent shutdowns and lockouts in our industrial districts.

If the interests of the United States are not made the paramount interest by the government of the United States if theories do not give place to thoroughly practical ideas and methods, if stalwart Americanism does not succeed to idiosyncracies in our foreign relations, it will not be a question of eight hours work in our mills and shops and mines and factories, but a question of shutdowns and no work at all.
